Hidden Gems Celebrated for Readers

University of Vermont Associate Library Professor Karl Bridges' 100 Great American Novels You've (Probably) Never Read was recently published by Libraries Unlimited. Intended as a resource for both libraries and general readers, Bridges' work features novels written between 1797 and 1997 by a diverse set of authors such as Francine Prose, Chester Himes, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, and Horatio Alger. ALA Library Workplace Survey

CHICAGO - The American Library Association-Allied Professional Association (ALA-APA) is encouraging library employees to participate in its Library Workplace Wellness online survey. The survey provides an important opportunity for library employees to share information about the availability of, and their participation in, work/life options in libraries around the nation. and will be available through Dec. 14. "Like many other professions, we know that library workers experience stressors of doing more with less, increasing expectations from users and information overload," said ALA-APA Director Jenifer Grady. "We publish articles in Library Worklife about how employees can help themselves achieve work-life balance, but we want to know what library administrations and employees themselves are doing to help staff improve their health and reduce stress." Children's Librarian Round Table

Good Morning all of you wonderful librarians!

On Tuesday, October 15, 2013 from 10:00 am to 1:00 pm we will be hosting a children's librarian round table at Midstate in Berlin. All Children's Librarians are encouraged to join us for a morning of sharing ideas and talking about what is working for us at our libraries and what we could use help with. Please come with questions, stories, and your new favorite book that every library needs to add to their collection! With special guest Jane Napier this day promises to be a great time. If you have any questions, please feel free to e-mail me or give me a call and I look forward to seeing all of you!

Our Mission

The Vermont Library Association (VLA) is an educational organization working to develop, promote, and improve library and information services and librarianship in the state of Vermont.

Thank You For Joining Us At the 120th Vermont Library Conference!

It was a packed day with record attendance! As slides and handouts from our presenters come in, you'll be able to find them on the VLC 2014 Program Page. BattleDecks was a huge success and we'll be uploading the videos of our participants to the VLA YouTube Channel, including winner Hannah Peacock of the Burnham Memorial Library, who was hysterical.

Libraries are part of the essential services in every community. Police and firefighters save lives; libraries make lives.
